BS BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

The undergraduate business program provides students with the knowledge and the analytical skills essential for employment in all sectors of business, industry, governmental and non-profit organizations. Graduates of the business program will understand the fundamentals of how a successful enterprise operates, and will have sufficient depth in an area of study to begin a successful career by providing immediate value to an organization.

Learning Objectives

The learning objectives for the business administration degree program are aligned with the Orfalea College of Business’s mission and the business administration majors will:

1. demonstrate breadth of knowledge and skills in general business fundamentals.

2. demonstrate depth of knowledge, skills, and perspectives within their selected, specific business discipline.

3. recognize the ethical dimensions of business decisions and the wider responsibility of business organizations for societal level outcomes above and beyond firm level profit or loss.

4. be able to generate innovative solutions to business problems that are supported by appropriate data analysis and evaluation of alternatives.

5. understand diverse perspectives and generate solutions that incorporate them.

6. demonstrate effective writing and speaking skills, peer leadership and participation in teams.

7. engage in career-related interactions with business professionals and industry leaders.

The Orfalea College of Business engages in a comprehensive assessment plan to ensure student achievement of these objectives.

Concentrations

Concentration are provided for students preparing for careers in accounting, financial management, management, information systems, marketing management, entrepreneurship, international business, and packaging and logistics.

The Quantitative Economics concentration and the Real Estate concentration, offered under the BS Economics, are also available to Business Administration majors.

The Business Administration degree program consists of five components: Major, Concentration, Support, General Education, and Electives.

Accounting is known as the “language of business” and is fundamental to understanding the operations of organizations. It provides information for making sound and informed business decisions. The Accounting Area works closely with the accounting profession to help ensure curriculum relevancy and technical competency.

ACCOUNTING CONCENTRATION

The Accounting Concentration prepares students for careers in public accounting (tax and audit), private industry, government, and not-for-profit organizations.

The Finance Area’s mission is threefold: First, to provide all Business students with an understanding of the financial principles which are essential to their success in the business world. Second, to provide students concentrating in Finance a rigorous, coherent, real-world-based, and up-to-date curriculum which prepares them for rewarding careers in Finance. Third, the Finance Area provides coursework in support of other majors and concentrations both within and outside the Orfalea College of Business.

Many of the classes are taught in the Financial Analysis Resource Center, a special-purpose classroom with Bloomberg and Reuters data terminals, scrolling ticker tape and DataWall display of prices of selected stocks. Each workstation is equipped with software which permits students to work on real-world problems, individually and in teams.

FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT CONCENTRATION

This concentration has four required courses, which provide Finance students with fundamentals of asset valuation, and applies these principles to securities as well as business assets. These principles are applied in courses focused on financial markets and institutions, and on corporate finance. Within the Finance curriculum, students can further specialize in one of three tracks, depending upon their career goals: the Financial Services track, including insurance, retirement, and estate planning; the Corporate Finance track; or the Financial Analyst track, working for investment banks, brokerage industry, or the asset management industry. The following are the required course that should be taken in sequence:

The Management Area offers coursework in human resource management, information systems, international management, organization behavior, organization theory, management science, and small business management. The area’s objectives include: 1) to provide students with knowledge, skills, and competencies critical to managerial success in small and complex organizations; 2) to prepare students for initial employment and subsequent management career advancement; 3) to help professionally oriented students use theory, concepts, analytical tools, and problem solving techniques; 4) to provide experiences that integrate functional business knowledge; and 5) to prepare students for integrating technology-based solutions in the business environment. The Management Area includes two concentrations: Management and Information Systems.

MANAGEMENT CONCENTRATION

Concentration Co-Coordinators
Rebecca Ellis and A. B. (Rami) Shani

The Management Concentration has three required courses devoted to managing people, processes, and change. This is an interdisciplinary program that prepares students to manage knowledge workers in both small and large enterprises within a global marketplace. Selected electives support a human resources or program management emphasis or a selected course of study tailored to an individual’s career or occupational goals.

INFORMATION SYSTEMS CONCENTRATION Concentration Coordinator
Barry Floyd

The Information Systems Concentration is an interdisciplinary program for students who want to analyze, design and implement information technology-based solutions for business and industry. With a focus on teamwork and turning theory into practice, the program ensures that students acquire a strong understanding of information systems and the functional areas of business while developing effective interpersonal skills. Students have opportunities to tailor the program to fit their particular interests, including earning a minor in Computer Science or a double concentration in Accounting or Finance. Graduates enjoy exciting career opportunities in business and industry as business analysts, consultants, network administrators, database designers, database administrators, web developers, project managers, and programmers, among many others.

The objective of the Marketing Area is twofold: 1) to prepare students for rewarding careers in marketing, and 2) to provide non-marketing students with a basic understanding of marketing and its role in business. At the heart of marketing is a customer-focus; the same is true of the Area and its faculty. The marketing faculty is student-oriented and is committed to helping students develop the skills necessary to successfully transition from the academic environment to the business world. The Area offers classes in the undergraduate and graduate degree programs offered through the College and works to develop courses to meet student and market place needs.

MARKETING MANAGEMENT CONCENTRATION
The Marketing Management Concentration provides students with a rigorous, analytical understanding of marketing decision-making. Students learn to generate, analyze, interpret, and present the information that organizations need to satisfy and retain customers; build brand equity and maximize return on investment; and develop innovative products and services.

The Marketing Management Concentration provides students with knowledge of a wide range of tools and techniques from fields as diverse as sociology, psychology, anthropology, information technology, engineering, and economics. Students learn to leverage information, technology, and knowledge to support innovation in virtually all areas of business, non-profit enterprises, and government.

As a discipline with broad applications, the Marketing Management Concentration offers flexible career paths and work styles. Graduates are in demand for positions in marketing intelligence, product development, product management, advertising, sales, and purchasing.
